

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I'm writing to express my displeasure at the attempts by the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) to limit the content that can be carried by digital Satellite Radio. The Satellite Radio companies are providing a valuable service to their subscribers and are offering content that can be found nowhere else. It appears rather obvious to me that the NAB members are so concerned about the competition that satellite radio provides that they are willing to go to ridiculous lengths to limit their freedom. Please consider the fantastic competition that satellite radio is bringing to broadcasting and how much their unique capabilities can only improve broadcasting for everyone.

Please don't allow the NAB to succeed in limiting what Satellite Radio can do.

Warmest Regards,
Keith Shaw
